

carnivorous plants

Carnivorous plants are fun to grow and make great plant companions for kids.
These plants are able to trap and eat insects.

Carnivorous plants prefer full sun - direct light.

Fertilizer not required. These plants get all the nutrients they need from insects.

Plant in a custom potting soil consisting of 3 parts Peat Moss and 1 part Perlite. Sphagnum Moss works great as a potting medium as well!

You can deadhead carnivorous plants in order to promote active growth and a tidy habit.

Use distilled or filtered water to water carnivorous plants as they are sensitive to excess minerality in the water. Keep the plant relatively moist, and do not let your plant dry out all the way.
