

silver dollar vine

This climbing succulent vine has cylindrical stems and flat, round leaves about the size of a (you guessed it) silver dollar.

Silver Dollar Vine loves direct light. Low light levels will cause stems to stretch.

Use a sharp, well-drained potting soil such as a Cactus specific mix. Your soil should take up water, but drain and dry quickly.

Easy on the water! Water and drain thoroughly, then let soil dry completely between waterings.

Use a cacti specific fertilizer during active growth, spring through summer. Pause fertilization during inactive growth, fall and winter.

As a member of the cucumber family, this plant uses the same type of tendrils to climb and grasp.
