

ZZ

If low maintenance plants are just your style then this tough plant is the one for you. Whether you're busy jet setter or just busy enough, this structural, upright plant will keep your growing style looking good without fuss and muss.

ZZ does great in low light, and even does well under florescent office lights. Just about any corner of the home or office will suffice.

Fertilize at least twice a year – more often for more growth – with a balanced, basic water-soluble fertilizer.

Regular potting mix is all that's required for ZZ to thrive.

It's easy to remember: a ZZ is easy.

Water when the top couple inches of soil is dry. If you forget, or go on vacation, no worries! ZZ can handle a couple weeks without water and can even survive a drought period. The plant will drop leaves to conserve moisture, so if this happens just give it a good drink and it will likely nrecover.
